236 more condos for Gateview

ALBANY — Gateview at Albany Hills this weekend begins pre-selling 236 new view condominiums to be constructed in two towers of up to 22 stories, Richard Martin, vice president of sales and marketing for Interstate Albany Corporation, a subsidiary of Interstate General Corporation of St. Charles, Maryland, said today.

The initial phase of 482 Gateview condominiums was sold-out in mid-winter of 1977. A total of 236 units will be built over a 18-month period, Martin continued. Gateview was the recipient of a Gold Nugget Award for Condominium Excellence in 1977 which was presented at the annual Pacific Coast Builders Conference in San Francisco.

There are several architectural changes which have been made in the new phase, according to the marketing executive. "We have increased the square footage of the units, putting extra space into the living rooms, plus elevating all ceilings to 9.6, among other improvements," Martin said.

Prices in the latest unit will start at $73,000 and go up to $280,000 for one of the penthouses being constructed. All of the 11 different floorplans will offer views of San Francisco Bay, a new tree-studded Albany and El Cerrito hill views. Groundbreaking for this new group of towers is expected to take place in Mid-January, with occupancy anticipated for early spring of 1980.

In the original interview towers, there will be an emphasis on recreational activities. In addition to a tennis court, swimming pool and putting green, there will be a fully equipped gym, sauna and Jacuzzi whirlpool, plus a recreation center which can be used for a variety of social uses. Gateview at Albany Hills will also continue its totally unique life support-security system. It is one of the most advanced systems available.

6 teenage volunteers honored by Alta Bates

ALBANY — Six local teenagers received awards on Saturday for their many hours of dedicated volunteering at Alta Bates Hospital. Together with 123 other students from East Bay high schools, they contributed this year a total of over 9,000 hours aiding departments and comforting patients.

Those receiving recognition from Albany were Serene Lantawong, Laura Perry, Colette Talkington and Elaine Wagg of Albany High, Angela Zichichi of Carondelet High, and Valerie Riggio of Presentation High.

From El Cerrito and Kensington came seven more awardees: Kim Barker and Dora Mao from El Cerrito High, Joanna Gipson from Holy Names and Danny Greo from St. Mary's — all El Cerrito residents; representing Kensington were Sarah Connick of El Cerrito High, and Chris Cucuel and Mark Doty of St. Mary's.

Presenting the awards were Ellie Claus, Assistant Administrator for Nursing Services, Arlene Erb, Pres-

And voted the "Most Valuable Team Member" by the Dolphins was Robert Adwere-Boamah. Last year's winner of the Most Valuable award, Susan Van Norman, was presented with a replacement trophy.

Firemen claim attempt to disrupt department

Stroll's auction nets $600

ALBANY — Some $600 was raised from the auction as the culmination of the Solano Stroll Saturday night, according to Lois Wahl, co-chairperson of the annual event.

Mrs. Wahl said between 5,000 and 6,000 area residents attended the popular event with the money raised from the Stroll going to La Cheim school for retarded and emotionally disturbed children in Berkeley.

With Joseph Petzel of Berkeley acting as auctioneer, the items donated by the participants of the advertising gimmick, the crowd responded with enthusiasm, it was said. Interspersed with the selling of the donated goods from the shops was the entertainment that included stiltwalkers, Commedia de Arte, the Dancing Dills, clowns, jugglers and the popular free Cable Car rides, Mrs. Wahl said.

One of the events included separate bands sponsored by different stores and services while two fashion shows were held, one by Cairry's and Yasmine held under the arbor on the Alameda, and the other sponsored by Larry Parks in the windows of his shop on Solano Avenue.

Co-chairpersons for the event were Mrs. Wahl, Cairry's, Bobbie Twarowsky, Heretofore, and Dave Nichols, Fidelity Savings.

La Cheim School, 1 Bolivar Drive in Berkeley is a non-profit school under the direction of Vic Prada.

Albany Community Orchestra will accept aspiring musicians

ALBANY — Ernest Douglas, music director of the Albany Unified School District, today invited "all amateur musicians of all ages who would like to increase their playing skills, to join the Albany Community Orchestra."

Douglas will direct weekly rehearsals on Tuesday evenings from 7 to 9 in the band room at the Albany High School.

The Community Orchestra, now in its fourth year, rehearses the standard orchestral literature, and presents two concerts each year — one in December and one in May — Douglas said.

"The first rehearsal will be conducted on the evening of September 26. Interested musicians who would like to join may do so by attending the first meet," the director added. "No audition is required."

"We feel that the orchestra fills a real need in the Bay Area. There are all too few opportunities for musicians who love to play but who have not yet reached the professional level. Our orchestra provides a relaxed, congenial musical atmosphere where amateur musicians can grow musically while they enjoy themselves."

Moratorium on Hill zone ruling

ALBANY — The Albany City Council has established a two-month moratorium on any Albany hill development more dense than 18 residential units per acre and called for a study of possible future hill traffic problems.

Reacting to petitions signed by more than 600 residents, the council Monday night applied its limited moratorium to the hill area recently zoned to allow up to 35 units per acre. During the moratorium, minimum parking will be two spaces per unit.

Proponents of the moratorium successfully sought to prevent any high-density development on the

'We do it all for you?'

ALBANY — A 7-year-old girl, who sent for a snack at the San Pablo Avenue McDonald's got more than her change back.

Felicia Ranallo was walking away from the fast-food restaurant when she saw an envelope in some bushes.

The youngster picked it up and found it contained $1,180 in cash.

The girl and two friends, Gabrielle Scolnick, 9, and Tora Dixon, 8, took the money to Albany police.

If no one can prove ownership, the girl youth can keep the money.

What does she plan to do with it? "Share it with my friends," she said.

Hit Haden nine-point proposal

ALBANY — Firefighters are describing nine recommendations by City Administrator William Haden as "an attempt to disrupt and weaken the fire department."

After hearing audience objections to Haden's report, the Albany City Council Monday night decided to hold an executive session on personnel portions of the report beginning at 7 p.m. Wednesday.

Apparently not satisfied with the council action was Michael Williams, president of the Albany Firefighters Association, and others in the audience.

Williams said it appeared to him that the fire department was "singled out." He asked whether or not other departments will also be similarly singled out.

"We find no mention of review and evaluation of other departments. Our association does not object to constructive criticism, in fact we encourage it. We do however, resent what appears to be an attempt to disrupt and weaken the fire department," Williams declared.

Mayor Lewis Howell said the council will study all phases of city operations due to the effects of the Prop. 13 tax cut.

He emphasized that the Haden report has not been approved by the city council and was instead referred to the Civil Service Board. This action was taken in August.

And, Howell warned against public discussion of personnel matters which could lead to "character assassination."

Mentioned as a main objection to the Haden report was its recommendation that fire department job titles be moved out of the city charter into the city ordinance books.

Administrator Haden explained that the provision would merely allow a change in titles, such as from "fireman" to "firefighter" with the advantage of future flexibility of titles needing later changing.

FIREFIGHTERS

(Continued from Page 1) that the report had given rise to untrue rumors that the city planned to combine the fire department with the police department or else eliminate the fire department completely.

Although most of the recommendations appear to be routine "housekeeping" items, one of them seems to be related to the fire marshal's position and limitations on his use of a city car. This will be included in the executive meeting discussion.

In other business, the council:

● Heard objections by Jerome Blank, former Chamber of Commerce president, to the city rezoning initiative on the Nov. 7 ballot. Blank warned that the law would have severe economic effects upon duplex or triplex owners in downtown Albany.

● Passed a first reading of a new ordinance allowing police to make arrests on private property for trespassing, also calling for a report on any possibility that it might hinder political activities in the city.

● Heard Councilwoman Joyce Jackson explain that she has had an informative and congenial discussion with Police Chief James Simmons. But she remains willing to verify "before an impartial body" her earlier allegations that the chief has attempted to gain confidential information pertaining to the Civil Service Board, she said. Her earlier objections to appointment of a Civil Service Board secretary were procedural only, she added.

● Postponed consideration of a citizen's complaint of "rent abuse" for two weeks.

● Dorothy Larimer, a member of the Albany Planning and Zoning Commission, submitted her resignation to the Council, citing the press of the responsibilities of her position as the reason. Councilman Robert Luoma offered a resolution commending Mrs. Larimer for her services which was passed unanimously. He then submitted the name of John Hogg to replace her on the Commission. He was accepted by the City Council.

Openings at nursery school

ALBANY — Openings for youngsters in the morning and afternoon classes of the Albany Parent Nursery School "still are available," Kathy Sikors, secretary of the organization, announced today.

"Interested parents are invited to attend our regular class sessions and observe the school in operation," she added.

The morning session accepts children 2 years 9 months to 3 years 9 months old and runs from 9 to 11:45 a.m., Monday through Friday. The session from 12:30 to 3:15 p.m. accepts children from 3 years 9 months to school-age.

The program is administered by the Albany Adult School, and directed by "Early Childhood Education" instructors. The school serves the Albany Community "and derives a unique international flavor by drawing some of its membership from University Village," Ms. Sikors said.

"Activities are planned to vary every day in four areas: outdoor, kitchen, art, and science. The program includes a chance each day to join the whole group for a teacher-directed activity, and a smaller group for parent-supervised games and stories. Parents participate once a week.

Children may enroll in both sessions with the consent of the instructor at double the fee, but discounted rates will apply to enrolled siblings.

Interested parents may call Kaaren Hill, 526-1912, or Kathy Sikors, 526-7412 for further information.

EXCHANGING GLARES — Albany's Kay Parisho, portraying an aging hypochondriac in the Masquers' production of "Night Must Fall," apparently attempts to get a grip on herself while being stared down by Dan (Phil Goldsmith of Kensington) in whose power she remains through several acts of the Emyln Williams mystery play. The production, directed by Theo Collins, is being staged at the Playhouse, 105 Park Place, Point Richmond, on Friday and Saturday evenings through October 7.

Retaining simplicity in solar power technology

LOS ANGELES — America's solar energy industry has been aiming for too much technological sophistication and needs to learn that simpler cannot only be cheaper but more effective.

Instead of developing all-purpose systems to cover the widest market, the industry should put its major effort into specialized, single-application products serving different climates and structures.

The advice comes from Professor Baruch Givoni of Israel, one of the world's most respected solar energy experts and a visiting professor at the University of California at Los Angeles School of Architecture and Urban Planning.

"Until quite recently, the major research and development push in this country has been for high-performance solar collectors that could both heat and cool buildings," says Dr. Givoni. "What's really needed in the United States and most parts of the world are simpler and less expensive single-purpose devices."

In the long run, the soundest solution to domestic energy needs lies in "passive" solar energy systems, in which roof, windows and walls are integrated to make each house its own "energy machine," he says.

Putting theory into practice, Givoni has designed a house made of lightweight concrete, which relies mainly on the difference between night and day temperatures for its heating and cooling. The 2700-sq.-ft. building, dubbed a "heat sandwich" for its top and bottom solar panels, features movable roof insulation, while radiation traps beneath the roof and in the basement function as solar collection and storage areas.

A layer of gravel under the roof absorbs heat during the day and releases it at night, while excess heat is circulated to the gravel-filled basement, where it can be stored for up to five days.

The system also works in reverse by circulating night air through the attic and basement, cooling the gravel layers. When the next day's warm air passes through the cooler gravel, its temperature drops, naturally air conditioning the house. During extremely hot periods, the gravel is sprinkled with water to add evaporative cooling.

As part of the design, concrete floors and partitions absorb and hold heat during the day and let it seep inside the house during the evening, or store cold night air for release during the day. Water for home needs is also heated through solar radiation.

Construction of the house is now starting in the Israeli settlement of Yamit, and Professor Givoni says that the design will work equally well in California as well as all but the most humid parts of the United States. As a further refinement, he is working on ideas for long-range storage of winter air for release during the summer and for cooling the ground beneath the house in summer by circulating night air under the building.

Givoni and his American colleagues at UCLA hope to work on joint projects during the coming years under the California-Israel solar energy program, recently announced by Governor Jerry Brown.

To strengthen the cooperation, Givoni will spend one quarter of each academic year as adjunct professor at UCLA and the remaining time in his regular position as head of Building Climatology and Solar Energy Utilization at the Sde Boker Research Institute of Ben Gurion University in Israel.

Indians' handicraft display

OAKLAND — Displays and demonstrations of traditional Native American handicrafts and dances will highlight the Oakland Museum's "Children's Powwow" in celebration of California Indian Day, in the Museum Gardens from 2-5 p.m. Friday.

Wearing the ceremonial dress of the tribes they represent, children from all over the Bay Area will perform age-old dances and demonstrate weaving, pottery, leather tanning and other craft techniques that have been handed down through the generations.

The afternoon festivities follow a morning of classes and workshops for teachers, parents and others interested in working with Native American children.

Panel appointments reflect trend toward conservatism

By NORMAN COLBY

ALBANY — Membership on the city's commissions and committees are beginning to roughly reflect the Albany City Council's shift from "liberal" to "conservative" as a result of the November and April elections.

City Administrator William Haden recently updated the membership lists, which contain about 75 local residents.

Many of the recent appointments have been made by Councilmen Louis George and William Lewis, who took office upon the recall of Mike Gleason and Pat Griffin in November. The newcomers were elected again in April.

Some of the Gleason and Griffin appointees are still members, often because they have been appointed again by another council member, sometimes because no replacement has been named.

The appointment process is slow, with some council members deliberating for weeks over their selections. And vacancies regularly occur as people drop out.

Because council members pick those who they believe will champion their views on many issues, the commissions and committees tend to be polarized in the council image.

There are exceptions. A notable one is Sam Dows, a retired Army colonel. He was appointed by Councilman George to the Planning and Zoning Commission. And Dows was named by Councilwoman Joyce Jackson, a "liberal," to the Housing and Community Development Committee.

It is likely that the trend towards more traditional methods will continue at least until the next election in 1980. The council appears to be divided 4-1, with Councilwoman Jackson the remaining liberal after the departure of Gleason and Griffin. Considered generally traditionalist are Mayor Lewis Howell, Vice Mayor Robert Luoma, George and Lewis.

The current volunteer groups and their memberships:

Planning and Zoning Commission — Sam Dows (appointed by George), Bill Chambers (Lewis), Virginia Moody (Howell), Ann Berry (Jackson) and

Civil Service Board — Thomas McQuinn (George), Robert Taylor (Lewis), Jerry Corn (Howell), Thelma Hall (Jackson), and Ed (Luoma).

Park and Recreation Commission — Jack Dempster (George), E. VanEckhardt (Lewis), Tony Kalberer (Howell), Ruth Menikoff (Jackson), Ted Valli (Luoma), Berling, Chris Caran (William Woodworth), pointed by the school district.

Waterfront Committee — Arthur Doss, William Meyer, Merv Helliwig (George), Neal Helliwig, Redel, William Woodworth (Lewis), Lee Kell, Luoma (Howell), Gleason, Howard McQuinn, Sue Twiss (Jackson), Mariah Hoyle, Jerry niola (Luoma), Ganong (originally pointed by Griffin).

Library Board — Bonnesen (George), Lyon (Lewis), Joyce (Howell), Patricia (Howell), Krause Jr. (Luoma).

Housing and Community Development Committee — Bruce Davis, Arthur (Clare) (Lewis), Adam, Robert (Luoma), Manuel (Howell), Sam Dows, Clyde (Jackson), Bruce (Luoma), Dorothy (Howell), Joyce Hudson (Griffin), current appointments.

Traffic and Safety Commission — John (George), Lucille (Lewis), Donald (Howell), Kathleen (Jackson), Tom (Luoma).

Committee on Aging — Dr. Arthur Doss (George), Thelma Kane, Bluma Vranica (Lewis), Belec, Thomas (Howell), Shariene (Howell), Gene Kramer (Luoma), Myriam Heath (Luoma), Catherine Webb, Brown, Betty (Luoma), Sublett, (appointed by committee itself).

East Bay Ballet Theatre to give local concert

ALBANY — The East Bay Ballet Theatre's apprentice company will present a concert for families and friends on October 1 at 3 p.m. at the Albany High Little Theater, 603 Key Route Blvd. Interested persons "may call 841-6500 Ex. 481 to reserve complimentary tickets."

Three ballets are in preparation for the performance. For the first, "Trisch-Tratsch Polka," by Johann Strauss, Charles Girvin has devised a choreography suited to young dancers. The second ballet is based on pieces from "Pulcinella," music by Igor Stravinsky and choreography by Paul Goodman. Her selections from "Pulcinella" represent a variety of moods.

The closing ballet will be the "Peter and the Wolf" music by Sergei Prokofiev (on a recording with Peter Ustinov narrating) with choreography by the company's founding director, Jane Stamps. The dancers are under the direction of Grace Doty, company artistic director, and Charles Girvin, company teacher.

Members of the apprentice company (ages 11 to 14) are aspiring to eventual membership in the East Bay Ballet Theatre company. In Sunday's concert, apprentice dancers from Berkeley are: Lisa Banks, Suzanne Burns, Andrea Gaudet, Lynn Orme, Lisa Piniella, Michelle Poe, and Judi Simpson. From Kensington are Jennifer Griffith and Kim Wright. From Richmond are Mandy and Ingrid Ordinario. From Albany are Tiffany Scolnick and Leigh Anne Blinn. And from El Cerrito is Susan Forstrom of the company's intermediate group.

Peralta offers new degree and certificate programs

ALBANY — New certificate and degree programs, expanded financial aid service and a pilot educational advisement center await Peralta College for Non-Traditional Study students this fall.

Students may register at the first class session or by mail. Classes begin September 11. Free brochures with full information on registration dates and times and a complete listing of course offerings can be obtained free of charge by contacting PCNS administrative offices at 2020 Milvia Street in Berkeley or the Fruitvale Community Education Center at 1900 Fruitvale Avenue in Oakland. All courses are tuition free to students who are legal residents of the Peralta Community College District (Alameda, Albany, Berkeley, Emeryville, Piedmont, and Plumas County).

The certificate and degree programs are in supervision and management and in transportation and distribution. The former is designed to prepare men and women for management responsibilities in private business, industry and the public sector. The latter is for persons who want to enter the transportation industry or those already in the field who want to improve their skills and increase their chances for advancement.

This semester students will be able to apply for veterans benefits and Basic Educational Opportunity Grants through PCNS directly instead of having to go through one of the other Peralta Colleges.

Another service is the establishment of a cooperative work experience and job placement project for the disabled. Assessment and job placement specialists will help develop vocational training opportunities for qualified disabled students. Pre-employment training and career guidance classes will be offered as part of the program.

Persons considering changing their life after getting a job, switching schools or careers, or returning to school can look to the Peralta Learning Center for change and the ever popular career/life planning courses for guidance.

The exchange, housed in the second floor of PCNS administrative offices at 2020 Milvia Street in Berkeley, is in the employment state of development unit that will provide comprehensive information and referral services for all in the areas of career opportunities in postsecondary education. The unit will help students develop their interests and marketable skills, are offered several locations throughout the East Bay.

Take good care of your furnace now.

And it will take good care of you all winter long. These few kind gestures will help your furnace burn more safely and efficiently.

Check for dust.

If you have a wall furnace, see that the area around the air openings and controls is free of lint and dust. If you see accumulations of what looks like soot, call a furnace repair service.

If you have a central furnace, clean or replace the filter now, and at least once more during the heating season. A clogged filter wastes energy and increases heating costs. (For safety's sake, be sure no combustibles are stored near your furnace.)

How to relight the pilot.

If your pilot is out, turn the thermostat to the lowest possible setting before relighting. Make sure the main burner valve and the pilot valve are turned off and allow a few minutes for the gas to clear.

Then check the manufacturer's light-up instructions which appear on most furnaces. Once the pilot is relighted, reset the thermostat to 65° or lower. If you're uneasy about it, call us.

Call us if you smell gas.

If your furnace needs parts or repairs, call a qualified furnace repair service. If you smell gas, call us.

Ask for our booklets "At Your Service" and "Gas and Electric Safety in Your Home," free at any of our offices.

Spend a few kind moments with your furnace, and it will take good care of you all winter long.

Hometown news

A tiny deaf mute trudging determinedly toward her home in Sacramento, got only as far as the north parking lot at Golden Gate Fields by dawn Friday. Then she ran right into the arms of the law. And it was some time before Albany Police Chief James Simmons and his sergeant, Raoul Harris, were able to convince the youngster that they were friendly arms.

The officers, responding to an early morning alarm at the race track, spotted the diminutive figure slipping through the bushes that flank the parking area, and overtook Roxanna Holcomb before she could find her way to the highway.

Taken to the Albany station, the chilled and hungry child realized, after an exchange of notes and several helpings of doughnuts and milk, that she was in very good hands.

In her childish scrawl she noted her name and address, and made a brief report of her escapade. Apparently she had fled from the California School for the Blind and Deaf in Berkeley that day after she had been enrolled at the institution. She had been frightened by other students who roughed her up "and punched me."

Determined to find her way back to her mother, she started out on foot, coatless, without money, and only a vague idea of the route that would lead her home. But Roxanna was not an experienced traveler. It was her first trip away from home. She spent most of the night wandering over a maze of unfamiliar roads and streets, and was still trying when she stumbled into sight of the officers.

Chief Simmons, after interrogations and doughnuts, contacted the small fugitive's family who immediately decided that home was the best place for Roxanna. And Roxy made a triumphal return to the State Capital, with a full police escort.

A more seasoned traveler, Derek Ritchie, who migrated with his family to Albany from Scotland, some 11 years ago, returned to his native heath recently as a member of the Prince Charles Pipe Band of San Francisco.

The Bay Area bandmen, competing against Scotland's finest at the Cowal Highland Games, captured the coveted musical shield and returned to the Bay Area with their prize. It was the first time the Cowal Shield had left Scotland since 1907.

Derek, the band's lead drummer, is the son of John and Elspeth Ritchie, and was graduated this year from Albany High.

"The shield is the most prized band trophy in Scotland," Derek's proud father exulted today. "And it was only one of three first places taken by our band."

California and Roy and Elsie Harford observed simultaneous anniversaries this year, with the State marking its 128th year in the Union and the Harford's feting their 50th year in Albany.

During his half-century here Roy served a term as president of the Albany Chamber of Commerce and was the thirty-first president of the Albany Rotary Club.

The Harfords, incidentally, never have considered splitting, which is more than the State of California can say.

Should voters decide war, taxes?

And if we don't make some adjustments soon, he adds, then we just might continue "to follow a Roman road to decline."

Edmunds, who was an executive for 35 years with the Ford Motor Company, Hughes Aircraft, the U.S. State Department and the U.S. Bureau of the Budget, admits that his plan for the future is an idealistic one. He doesn't profess to be the Messiah ready to lead the unfortunates out of economic morass.

By the same token, he doesn't expect his book, "Alternative U.S. Futures, A Policy Analysis of Individual Choices in a Political Economy," to be taken lightly.

"I hope the book will start a dialogue," says Edmunds, "and if the ideas get around with any currency, it's possible in the next 15 or 20 years, when we are just tired of the effects of inflation and an impersonal society, it won't seem like so great a change to try them."

His proposed changes appear in a segment of the book entitled, "The Future of the U.S.: An Original Play." In it, corporations and individuals pay the same tax rates, low-income families below the poverty level get negative tax subsidies, and the progressive system is adjusted each year by the Executive Branch of government. The range of income distribution is narrowed; deductions are virtually eliminated.

In addition, the Jefferson

Memorial Reconvocation of 1995 amends the Constitution by requiring a majority referendum vote of the people. The sovereign people have the right to declare war, to vote on all revenue and taxation bills, and to form an advisory group to the House and Senate if they feel underrepresented in Congress.

An amendment establishes an Office of Independent Prosecutor to investigate violations of ethics and law, reporting only to the people. The federal and state governments become merely fiscal agents for local government. Other nations can join the U.S. as a state or "Affiliate" with the power to help elect the President and veto legislation that adversely affects trade between nations.

The immediate effects of these proposals would be to shift the balance of power from centralized government and huge corporations to the individual. And therein lie the considerable forces working against Edmunds' reforms.

"The idea is that individuals become the main participants," he says, "like 50 to 70 years ago. But to do this, we would have to overcome the entrenchments of institutions and powerful lobbies, the normal resistance to change, and the myth that large-scale organizations are efficient. I feel they are inefficient."

Another major effect of the changes would be to bring foreign countries with whom the United States trades into the economic system, if they so choose.

"We rely on foreign sources for numerous metals vital to the U.S."

economy," Edmunds says. "That means much of our oil, minerals, electronics, asbestos, sulfur, coffee, fruits, leather products and other consumables. The people abroad who make these products are as much a part of our economic fabric as we are, but we treat them as adversaries rather than participants. We subject them to differences in tariffs, exchange rates, licensing and quotas."

One of his alternative "scenarios" for the U.S., called "The Greek Re-Play," illustrates how a highly commercial society, like that of the Greeks, could lead to international conflict. The Greeks could never conceive of foreign nations being granted any rights of Greek citizenship, he writes, "and we are having the same difficulty."

Another scenario, "The Roman Re-Play," is even more grim. He shows how U.S. policies are similar to 11 of ancient Rome's policies and differ from only two. And you know what happened to Rome.

"The U.S. stands today about where Rome was in 40 B.C. — disillusioned, demoralized, with falling birth rates, moral change and disorder," Edmunds says. "Within 10 years, the Roman society thought it solved its problems by letting Caesar set up a dictatorship. Rather, it was the beginning of the end," he says. "I hope we're smarter than that, and that we learned something."

A serious recession could force the country into some major reforms, according to the author, so that reorganized resources would favor small individual development. Political upheaval led by "the new middle-class poor who feel they've been dispossessed" might do it, too, he adds.

Whatever occurs, Edmunds feels the Constitution, as originally written, has become an outdated document because of rapidly changing society.

"The Constitution," the last grand design of American political thought, was drafted nearly two centuries ago. Yet during the past years, America has changed extraordinarily. We have gone from a nation that was 70 percent farmers to one that is 95 percent nonfarmers," he points out.

"The U.S. has forgotten its origins as a democracy," he says. "We have settled on a low growth economic policy with inflation, and that can lead to rigid institutions. We can do better. Other research confirms that the U.S. could double its economic growth rate, wipe out unemployment and eliminate inflation? How? With the Reform Act of 1995." Edmunds says the book has been kicking around his head for several years, but it wasn't until the late '60s and '70s that it all came into focus. He is vice chancellor for business at UC Riverside, in charge of police and campus unrest during the Vietnam era.

"The students — and our own children — experienced the same disillusionment," he recalls. "I recall a soft-spoken educator who was always concerned about my generation, the teachers, but more values on property than on the people." "I was really shocked" the Kent State killings, and three or four weeks after that, I had to go to Ohio to speak with businessmen there. They complained about the disorderly students and the damage to property they had caused. And I thought, 'No property is worth what's happened here.'"

California gloomy on inflation

SAN FRANCISCO — Californians are pessimistic about the current economy and show continued concern about inflation, according to a consumer attitude survey conducted for Bank of America.

The survey's well-being index, measuring how Californians are getting along financially today compared to a year ago, dropped for the third consecutive time in studies conducted since the beginning of the year. The July reading of 123 was down three points from May and down ten points from January. Of the 897 Californians queried, 26 percent said they actually are worse off today and 23 percent said they could see no change.

Consumer confidence that inflation can be controlled recovered five points in July to 67, the second lowest reading in the survey's three-year history. "The slight recovery continues to reflect the overall concern about the cost of living," said Fred Thiemann, head of marketing research for the bank. "Taxes, labor disputes, and the dollar's decline are all key elements in the psychology of consumers."

SAN FRANCISCO — Every autumn since 1935 the blessing of the Fishing Fleet has been a Fishermen's Wharf tradition. This year's small craft from the entire port area are expected to moor in the Jefferson Street basin on the first Friday in October for the 43rd annual rites.

San Francisco's annual blessing of the Fishing Fleet, guardian of marlin, was begun by a group of Italian-born parishioners of St. Peter and Paul's church headed by Mrs. Anna Tarantino, president of the 35-member Society of Maria del Lume. It perpetuates a "festa" originated in the Middle Ages in Sicily. It was during the Madonna del Lume is said to have performed the first of many miracles which saved the lives of imperiled fishermen.

Following solemn high mass at 11 a.m., celebrants will gather in front of the church at 666 Filbert Street where a painting of the Madonna del Lume (Most Holy Mother of Light) will be enshrined beneath a floral arch on a flower-covered float.

They will form a procession and at approximately 2 p.m. follow an eight-block parade from the church to the waterfront via Columbus Avenue and Jones Street, according to Fleet Blessing Chairman Anna Tarantino.

At the boat basin Father Salvatore Giacomini, new pastor of St. Peter and Paul's, will sprinkle holy water on the fishing boats and pray to Our Lady for abundance and protection.

The blessing of the fishing fleet is an integral part of the San Francisco's Columbus celebration. The Italian community's 1978 observance will run from October through October 9 with the parade on Sunday, Oct. 8.

'Normalizing drop' for construction

SAN FRANCISCO — Construction activity in northern coastal California's 16 counties for July settled back to $265 million in permit valuations, reports Security Pacific Bank, far below the June $881 million total.

Vice President Gerald McIntyre, administrator of the bank's Real Estate Finance Department for Northern California said the expected drop was due to the unusually huge June volume caused by a rush of builders to beat new state energy regulations which became effective July 1.

"The high June figures 'borrowed' from activity that would have occurred later in the year," McIntyre explained. "And we expect, too, that the remaining months of 1978 will reflect a somewhat weaker pace because of our record high June totals."

McIntyre based his report on data compiled by Security Pacific Bank's Research Department for the current issue of the bank's monthly publication, "California Construction Trends," which this month features a detailed table of valuations and permits by type of structure for all of California.

The bank's report covers the north coastal counties of: Die Norte, Humboldt, Mendocino, Lake, Sonoma, Napa, Solano, Marin, San Francisco, Contra Costa, Alameda, San Mateo, Santa Cruz, Santa Clara, San Benito, and Monterey.

Continuing his report, McIntyre said residential permits for the area in July totaled $193 million, a 54 percent drop from the previous month's $355 million figure. Uncertainty over the burgeoning rent control issue in Southern California continues to cloud the multi-unit sector of residential construction throughout the state, he added.

Single family construction accounted for approximately 65 percent of the valuations while the remainder was made up of multi-unit building and home remodelings.

Albany downs Swett, 19-3

By JON ROCHMIS

J-G Sports Writer

John Swett couldn't keep Albany guessing forever. Swett's Jimmy Guess rolled all over the Cougars' defense during the first half, accumulating 101 yards on 22 carries Friday afternoon.

But the Cougs made needed halftime adjustments, scored three times after a scoreless first half, and crushed the Indians, 19-3.

Guess rushed seven times in the second half, and gained just four yards.

"We had to make some adjustments," said Albany.

coach Dave Frey, whose team evened its mark at 1-1 at Cougar Field.

"In the first half, we couldn't move, and they ran pretty well against us," he continued. "But we shifted over some linemen and we picked it up pretty well."

Cougar quarterback Mike Teele neutralized Guess' first-half yardage by piling up 90 yards of his own in the second half. He cruised for 95 yards on the game.

Teele, operating Albany's veer, had to leave the game twice due to a sprained ankle. "When I turned on it the first time, it hurt," he said, "but then I was able to sit down and rest it. It didn't bother me too much after that."

Teele was carried off the field with 6:40 remaining in the third quarter after lumbering his way for 29 yards on an option keeper. His ankle didn't seem to hamper him when he came back, though, as he carried the ball nine more times in the game.

"It helped us when he came back," Frey said. "You know, he doesn't look very fast when he runs, but he really is quick. I guess it's because he's so big and takes those big, long strides."

Teele and John Peyovich alternated QB duties throughout the game, and their inexperience (the two have never played varsity ball in their position) showed in the first half.

They had difficulty pitching the ball out, and the linemen didn't help matters much as they often lined up wrong or moved before the ball was snapped.

The Indians (0-2) were able to take advantage of Albany's errant ways. On their third possession, they consumed a healthy 9:02 off the clock, thanks to the running of Guess.

But the Cougars' goal-line defense did a creditable job after a 77-yard drive by Swett, and the Indians had to settle for Guess' 20-yard field goal with 4:49 left in the half.

Albany assumed command on its first possession of the second half. Runningback Mike Johnson helped get the Cougars rolling by gaining 29 yards despite fumbling the ball.

Two plays later, Teele rolled out, tucked the ball under his arm on the 41, and bulldozed to the 17 for 24 more yards. After Gary Williams gained two, Teele pitched to Anthony Freeman, who ran wide and into the end zone for Albany's first points.

The Indians, meanwhile, showed what was to come by failing to drive ahead for any more yardage. In fact, Swett ran just 20 plays in the second half.

"In the first half we ran the ball at will," Swett coach Bob Hay said. "But in the second half, their big end (Bo Thomas) really gave them an advantage. Plus, our defensive ends didn't do their responsibility on one play and he broke one outside."

Hay referred to Thomas' dazzling 46-yard punt return for a touchdown in the third quarter. Swett was faced with a fourth and 12 on its own 12, but even though the punt was a good one, Thomas broke a couple of tackles and dragged a few Indians along the way en route to the six-pointer.

TWO OF A KIND — While John Swett's No. 22 (Jimmy Guess) drove for more yardage, Albany No. 22 (Mike Johnson) tried to stop him. Guess was unstoppable in the first half, but Albany prevailed in the second half and won, 19-3.

Deadline Sept. 29

Sign-ups for 'PPK' event

are also included.

This is the 18th anniversary year for PPK. From its inception, the youth activity has been sponsored by the Ford Dealers of America in conjunction with the National Football League. In that time millions of youngsters have taken part in PPK, making it one of the largest and fastest growing activities of its kind in America.

Exchange exhibit

of student art
SAN FRANCISCO — In a first time event, students from the San Francisco Art Institute will participate in a multi-media exchange exhibition at the CCAC Student Gallery, Sept. 18 through Sept. 30.

In conjunction with the exhibit at CCAC, a multi-media exhibit by approximately 25 CCAC students will be shown at the Diego Rivera Gallery at the San Francisco Art Institute from Sept. 20 through Oct. 6.

Trophies will be awarded for first, second, and third place in the local competition in each of the six age groups. Increasing the youngster's chances of winning one of the 18 trophies is the fact that each contestant competes only against others of the same age. And since there is no body contact, an entrant's size is not as important as his ability to punt, pass and place-kick for distance with accuracy.

"Winners can continue on up through the Zone, District, Area and Division contests to the National Finals," Young said. "It's possible that one or more of our local winners could wind up in the Finals."

When contestants register, each entrant gets a free PPK Tips Book. It contains helpful pointers from the pros on punting, passing and kicking. In the 1978 edition are suggestions from NFL stars Ray Guy, Bob Griese, and Errol Mann. Complete PPK rules and suggested conditioning exercises for contestants

New class concept in exercising

ALBANY — A "Physical Fitness Exercise Class" will be held at the Albany Community Center on Tuesday and Thursdays, from 7:15 to 8:15 p.m., starting September 26 and running through October 31.

Classes will consist of exercises to improve muscle tone, relaxation, develop energy, improve stamina, overcome fatigue, increase lung ventilation, strengthen the circulatory system and increase flexibility.

"This fitness class is designed to assist and help each individual to improve his or her physical condition," a spokesman for the Albany Park and Recreation Department (the sponsoring organization), said today.

"Many exercise classes are designed to expose groups of people to a variety of exercise, but each individual is not taught how to improve his or her personal condition. This is one of the goals of these classes."

Former Prep-All-American Quarterback Robert Goady will instruct the classes. Registrations are accepted at the Albany Park and Recreation Department offices at 1000 San Pablo Ave.

Albany Bowl

Felix leads Jax to win

By PHIL ALSTON

ALBANY — Veteran Randy Felix uncorked a 277 game to close out his 639 series while leading Mory Jax to an 18 to 7 triumph over Full House in the second week of play in the 910 Major League at Albany Bowl.

Jack Jordan's potentially potent Full House aggregation wasted a 245 game and 596 series by Paco Vasquez and fell to seventh place in the league standings.

Ed Carrara shot 224-572 to keep his team in first place by one-half point over the Sparklers with a 20-5 win against O & R Vending.

Rod Sparks offered 617 and Mark Valente 600 as the Sparklers kept pace with the leaders by manning Hal's Freezers 20-5.

Leroy Cravens offered games of 205-202-208 for 615 series in pacing J.D.'s Raiders 20-5 over Diablo Bowling Supply.

In the Majorettes League Inez Scrivner's Team Six soared into first place after demolishing Bobbie Hayes' Team Eight 21 to 1. Jess Balcombe's 494 led the winners.

Best individual performance in the Majorettes was contributed by Margaret Short, whose 515 helped Real Estate Place Nick Rich Altman Dance Band 12-10.

First night action in the 870 Commercial found scoring uniformly good with Rich Blume the leader at 593 thanks to a closing 243. In close pursuit was George Schaber at 585, followed by Paula Broome at 573 and Connie Hill 562.

In the Tri City Men's League Richmond Brass trimmed Mary & Joe's 2-1 behind Ed Ojeda's 565. John Suoja had 571 for the losers.

Ming Hui got the 184 Club season off to a good start with 603 while Craig Lacy, 255-594, topped the 660 Classic. Johnny Myers had 569 for Woodstackers and T.C. Irving 568 in the Friday Invitational. Al Pimentel 548 for Green Lantern and Jeff Watson 544 for After Dinner Fours.

John Kahler's 557 led Berkeley Elks, and Larry Belote's 535 was best for Albany Eagles.

Sue McReynolds pitched a 215 game to lead the Ladies Scratch League with 545.

Fish rescue project at San Pablo

SAN PABLO — The California Department of Fish and Game is studying the feasibility of rescuing game fish from the East Bay Municipal Utility District's San Pablo Reservoir as it is being drained.

The drawdown will make possible a $14 million modification to the dam — an action required to prevent a possible disaster in the event of an earthquake.

Past experience has shown that fish rescue from reservoirs can be costly and even hazardous to personnel. Reservoir bottoms are usually covered by several feet of fine silt, making it difficult and dangerous to set and haul trucks to water's edge after a reservoir has been lowered enough to concentrate the fish into a small area where they can be netted.

San Pablo Reservoir has a resident population of warmwater fish including largemouth bass, crappie, sunfish, and catfish. There are also a few large rainbow trout left over from previous plantings.

As a first step to determine the feasibility of a fish rescue operation, DFG personnel have been attempting to determine the quantity of each of the various species of fish in the lake. Three methods have been used: fishing at night with an electroshocking boat, gill netting, and intensive fishing for bass by expert anglers.

The electroshocking operation is a method in which an electric field is set up around the boat, stunning all nearby fish and forcing them to surface where they are scooped up in hand nets. After measuring and counting the fish, the operators return them unharmed to the water. Electroshocking is the best method for procuring fish unharmed. To date, 18 hours of electroshocking has yielded only 75 largemouth bass, 150 black crappie, and five channel catfish.

Ex-fencer 'foils' his students

BERKELEY — In his retirement years, a famous fencer has turned a lesson of the sword into a teaching device to help children learn to read.

Julius Palffy-Alpar, 70, retired University of California fencing master at Berkeley and celebrated athlete, has invented a system of symbols and straight lines of varying heights. The learner creates letters and words with these objects according to a system in which a half circle can make 11 letters.

Palffy-Alpar devised his system while teaching blind students to fence. Among many aids he designed for them was a clock made of half circles and lines.

The students pointed out to him that they could learn letters the way they had learned the movement and direction of the clock.

Palffy-Alpar's technique, which he calls "creating Letters with Symbols," is now in use in Bay Area classrooms and in UC Berkeley's teacher-training program.

Palffy-Alpar was one of Hungary's great athletes in track, skiing and fencing. He is former "captain professor" at the Hungarian Military Academy, sports manager for the U.S. Army in Europe, a fencing tutor for actors, and an Olympic fencing coach.

And now he is the creator of a teaching device to help children learn to read.

The guest speaker for this Sunday will be Mr. Jesse M. Ramirez, a lay preacher from the First Mexican Baptist Church in Richmond. Mr. Ramirez will be speaking at the 11 a.m. hour and will bring a report on the work of his congregation at the 6:30 p.m. fellowship hour.

The morning worship will be conducted by one of the Deacons. The Church Choir will be singing and there will be nursery care available for small children.

At the 6:30 hour there will be a time of singing led by Mr. David Dominguez. There will be opportunity for dialogue with Mr. Ramirez on the ministry among Hispanics in the East Bay.

Sunday School classes for all ages meet from 9:30 to 10:45 a.m. Visitors are welcome at all of these events.

LOS ANGELES — It's getting harder to claim college degrees you don't have. More employers than ever are checking up on degree claims as a result of recent media accounts of diploma "mills" and "services" that sell worthless degrees.

Registrar Stanley Chin of the University of California at Los Angeles says his office receives tens of thousands of calls and letters each year requesting verification of degree claims. But the volume of mail has increased by "well over ten percent" since a network television program exposed the phony-degree scandal.

"It's a big temptation for people to claim degrees they don't have because of their value in the job market," says Chin. "Would-be college graduates tend to choose large, well-known institutions like UCLA, hoping for a certain amount of anonymity. What they may not realize is that it takes only a few minutes to check out their claims."

New approach to ride sharing

BERKELEY — A new approach to ridesharing services is offered by the Berkeley Ridesharing Project Office, which has recently begun operating here.

The office is a form of "Travel Bureau" providing persons living or working in Berkeley with free carpool, vanpool, and public transit information at times when life-cycle changes are most likely to create changes in travel habits. (Common lifestyle changes are those such as buying or renting a home, or starting a new job.)

The new Ridesharing Information Service individually contacts the potential ridesharing customer, rather than waiting for the prospect to make the inquiry. Based upon the initial contact (usually by telephone), the "customer" is provided with detailed ridesharing information a follow-up call initiated by the appropriate ridesharing or transit agency.

In the Berkeley area, the follow-up call providing detailed ridesharing information is usually made either by the State CALTRANS Office or the AC Transit Information Service. CALTRANS maintains a carpool and vanpool ridesharing list of 12,000 persons from which matching services are provided to persons living and working in the same areas.

A joint effort of the City of Berkeley, the University of California, and the California Department of Transportation, the project is expected to help alleviate traffic congestion through better utilization of both private vehicles and public transit systems.

Interested persons may telephone the Berkeley Ridesharing Office at 642-0535.
